

BOARD AWARDS TWO PAVING JOBS

P. J. Moran Gets Macadam Contracts on H Street and Tenth East.

COST OF WORK INCREASING

SIDEWALK EXTENSION CARRIED OFF BY HANLEY.

The board of public works, at a meeting yesterday morning, let contracts for two paving and one sidewalk extensions. The paving extensions are on H street, between Brigham and First avenue, and on Tenth East street, between Second and Fifth South streets. The sidewalk extension is the uncompleted work of the Utah Fireproofing company in extension No. 34, comprising about 9,000 linear feet in the southwest corner of the city.

P. J. Moran skipped off with both paving contracts, underbidding his only opponent, J. D. Hanley, with comparative ease. The bids were submitted for macadam pavement, to be laid with either limestone or with quartzite.

Moran's bid was $1 per square yard for the limestone and $3 for the quartzite, on H street. Hanley's bid was $1.15 for the limestone and $2.35 for the quartzite. The Moran bid, as tabulated by the city engineer, means that each front foot of property will be assessed $2.42.

The macadam is to be nine inches thick. The curb and gutter have already been put in on this street, and therefore the cost of installing it is not figured in the bid.

On Tenth East street the bid of Moran was $2.45 per square yard, as against Hanley's bid of $2.65. As tabulated by the city engineer this means that each front foot of abutting property will have to pay $4.77. The engineer's estimate on this work was $3.90 for each foot of property, but it was made last spring, when the price of material and labor was lower than it is now.

The total cost of the pavement will be $42.00, of which the city will pay $15.00 and the abutting property owners the remainder. The Hanley bid on this work contemplated an expenditure of $46,400.

The difference in the cost of the pavement on Tenth East and H street is due to the large amount of excavation required on Tenth East and the fact that the bids for this street include the laying of curb and gutter.

Retaining Wall Eliminated.

The specifications for this work show a driveway fifty feet wide, except in front of the property of the Salt Lake Brewing company, where it is ninety-two feet. This additional width was asked for by the company. It was intended to build a retaining wall here and the Moran bid for this work was $3,000. The board, after some discussion, decided that if a wall was to be built the brewing company should construct it and awarded the contract without the retaining wall section.

During the discussion Charles D. Rookledge proposed that the bids be sent to the council, with the recommendation that the retaining wall feature be eliminated, and that the council decide on this matter.

"You know what will happen if we send such a communication to the council," interrupted Chairman Leonard. "Don't you know they would refer that to the engineering committee, because there is a chance for debate, and the Lord only knows when it would be settled."

Rookledge acknowledged his mistake, and the contract was approved without any strings to it.

Moran promises to complete at least half the work this year, and will finish H street before snow flies.

Hanley Gets Sidewalks.

The sidewalk contract was carried off by Hanley. His bid was 37 cents a square yard for laying the cement walks and 7 cents a square yard for grading.

His only competitor was S. Birch, who bid 153-10 cents for grading and 223-10 cents for laying the sidewalk. The Hanley bid makes the total cost 34 cents a square yard, which is 5 cents higher than the bid of J. P. O'Neil of Ogden, submitted a week ago on extension No. 39 on the north bench. The additional cost of hauling material to the southwest corner of the city and the fact that O'Neil did not bid on the work are ascribed as the causes for the difference in the bids.

Hanley will begin work at once.
